

Psychiatry For Children And Adults

Every individual receiving psychiatric services needs an assessment by a psychiatrist or psychiatric advanced practice nurse. This assessment is used to determine both the need for medication and the management of the medication regimen. Compass Health Network can provide this assessment along with:

- Education regarding the effects of the medication and its relationship to the person's behavioral health disorders
- Prescription of medications
- Ongoing monitoring of the medication's effects

Medications can be the foundation of treatment for many people struggling with mental health challenges and are often the treatment of choice for persons with serious brain disorders such as severe and persistent mental illness. For adults and children battling depression, attention deficient disorders, anxiety, grief, or addictive disorders, medications may bring relief to some (or all) of the symptoms he or she is experiencing.

Counseling for Children and Adults

Whether you or your child are challenged by anxiety, depression, mood disorders, or related mental health problems, our licensed psychologists and counselors are here to help with life's toughest challenges. Compass Health Network offers individual, family, and group counseling. Our services help ease symptoms and promote good mental health in a quick and compassionate manner.